Medicaid Redesign Team Selected as Top Five Finalist for Innovations in American Government Award

The Ash Center for Democratic Governance and Innovation at the John F. Kennedy School of Government, Harvard University, has recognized the Medicaid Redesign Team, or MRT, as one of five finalists in this year's Innovations in American Government Awards competition. MRT is among government initiatives chosen for its dedicated effort of city, state, and federal governments, and for addressing policy issues in public health and health care. MRT was selected by a cohort of policy experts, researchers, and practitioners. You can read more in the Harvard News press release.

Broad agreement, and big questions, on value-based payments

Capital New York

New York State health officials are embracing a national move to value-based payment—the idea that doctors, hospitals, nursing homes and other providers should be compensated for the "value" of the care they provide, rather than the volume of services they render.
